2020 ARC Future Fellowships Seminar

Hosted by Research, Innovation and Commercialisation (RIC) and Chancellery, Research and Enterprise

Friday 4 October 2019 – 12:00pm-2:00pm
Venue: PAR-207-221 Bouverie St-B120 Theatre 2

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Timing</th>
<th>Activity</th>
<th>Further Information</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| 12:00pm*     | Welcome and Introduction                         | In conjunction with RIC Colleagues, Prof Julie McLeod (Pro Vice-Chancellor (Research Capability)) will provide a brief overview of:
• The funding landscape
• How UoM will support applicants
• Expectations of applications
• Content of the seminar                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| 12:15pm      | FT Assessment & Strategy                         | Hear from ARC College of Experts member Prof Jenny Lewis (Faculty of Arts) on:
• How Future Fellowship assessment works
• The strategic importance of Field of Research (FoR) codes and a good summary
• The importance of the Research Opportunity and Performance Evidence (ROPE) section – what is it, how is it assessed and how to write it
• Writing about career interruptions                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 12:45pm      | What does success look like? Anatomy of a Future Fellow | Hear from current Future Fellows A/Prof Sally Treloyn (Faculty of Fine Arts and Music) and Dr James Hutchison (Faculty of Science) about:
• Crafting a successful Future Fellowship application
• How to approach the ROPE section                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| 1:15pm       | Pairs discussion                                  | Applicants will discuss in pairs how they will sell their achievements relative to their discipline, career stage and opportunities.                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 1:35pm       | Questions, wrap up and next steps                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 2:00pm       | Close                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |

* A light lunch will be available from 11:45am.
PRESENTER BIOGRAPHIES

Prof Julie McLeod is Pro Vice-Chancellor (Research Capability) and Professor of Curriculum, Equity and Social Change in the Melbourne Graduate School of Education. She researches in the history and sociology of education, with a focus on curriculum, youth, citizenship and educational reform. Julie recently completed her Future Fellowship and is a member of the ARC College of Experts.

Prof Jenny Lewis is Professor of Public Policy and was the Founding Director of the Policy Lab. She is Associate Dean Research for the Faculty of Arts. She is the President of the International Research Society for Public Management and is a previous President of the Australian Political Studies Association. Jenny was an Australian Research Council Future Fellow for 2013-16, has received multiple research grants within Australia and internationally, and is the author of six books, and more than 70 journal articles and book chapters. She has been awarded several research prizes, including the Marshall E Dimock award for best article in Public Administration Review in 1999, a VicHealth health promotion research award in 2004, and the Kooiman prize for the best article in Public Management Review in 2012.

A/Prof Sally Treloyn (PhD Ethnomusicology, USYD) is an ARC Future Fellow and Senior Research Fellow in the Faculty of Fine Arts and Music undertaking several research projects and contracts. As Co-Director of the Research Unit for Indigenous Arts and Cultures, Sally plays a strategic role in the Indigenous research and research training agenda of the Faculty with the Wilin Centre for Indigenous Arts and Cultural Development. Sally serves on the University’s Education, Fine Arts Music and Business Human Ethics Sub-Committee, the Faculty of Fine Arts and Music’s Inclusion and Diversity Committee and is a member of the Wilin Executive Committee. Sally's primary research interests are Australian Aboriginal song and dance practices (with special expertise in traditions of the Kimberley and west Pilbara), sustainability and resilience, and archives and collections.

Dr James Hutchison is an ARC Future Fellow and lecturer at the School of Chemistry (SoC), working in the field of optical materials and sensing. Previously he held an DECRA fellowship at the SoC and before that he spent 6 years as a tenured researcher with the CNRS in Strasbourg, France, pioneering research into the chemical applications of strong light-molecule coupling.